

They say shoes are an indication of the kind of person you are. I'm told that men often judge a woman by the shoes she is wearing. That must have cut me out many times over. I look at shoes in shop windows almost obsessively - maybe because I have often found the beautiful fashionable shoes horribly uncomfortable. So I'm always searching for shoes that really do express who I am - I'm afraid, comfort being my top priority. Till then I'll go around barefooted as often as I can - my most favourite footwear- the grass beneath my feet and the air between my toes.
